Important electronic data slipping through your fingers?

From e-mails to word processing documents, your electronic files are crucial to your business. But if a legal situation arises, they're just like your paper files – fair game for lawyers to use in the evidence-gathering process.

Now is the time to achieve compliance and prevent important data from slipping through the cracks. Let Fowler's Electronic Discovery Group help reduce disruption caused by litigation and make sure you're prepared before your company comes under scrutiny. Not only will they help explain the mystery of electronic discovery, they'll analyze your company's information systems, develop a written protocol for storage and deletion, and provide legal counsel.

Call Fowler today to find out how we can lend a hand in preparing for electronic discovery.
